

Say Goodbye to Bad Hair Days!

By Lee Hendrickson

A bad hair day happens every day if you are one of the millions of women suffering from hair loss. You brush, push, spray, tease and comb over to conceal the shiny scalp that shines through no matter what. You think that because your mother or grandmother had thinning hair it's your misfortune to have thin hair too.

Take action as soon as you notice unusual hair loss. There are several medical reasons why we lose hair and you could have a simple solution to your dilemma by simply seeing your physician. Medication, illness, infection, or chemicals, all have the potential to stop hair from being formed properly in the hair root or cause it to shed prematurely.

Cosmetically we can do lots more for thinning hair than even several years ago.

My own hair loss problems began several years ago when I experienced alopecia areata. This is a common form of hair loss where bald spots, about the size of a quarter started appearing on the right side of my head. After help from my physician, the hair started to grow back but it was thinner and finer than it had been originally. It was very difficult to style and I never felt like I looked good. Even my years of experience as a hairdresser didn't help. The solution for me was hair extensions designed to make my hair thicker. With a little maintenance and care my hair always looks good. There are many women just like me with thin hair who have their hair extensions replaced every three to four months. They simply don't have a bad hair day because their extensions thicken and support their natural hair.

At our salon, The Hair Specialist, my business partner, Kelly Bartlett and I have positioned ourselves at the leading edge of the newest trends in the beauty industry. Our plan is to solve hair problems as specialists in the areas of thinning hair, straightening, hair extensions, hair coloring, and custom cutting services.

We are always searching for the best ways to help our clients. Our latest and maybe our best ever find is Cyberhair® Micro Point links. It is the safest, most featherweight non-invasive hair loss solution. It pumps up and adds considerable volume to fine, thin hair. Before we learned about Cyberhair, we used very small traditional hair extensions on many clients with some success but they still had to be careful when the wind blew their hair around and could expose bonds. I was really excited when we finally finished our intensive certification training and could begin helping our clients. Micro Point Link featuring Cyberhair fills in where other extensions can't. In this unique process we tie, four Cyberhair hairs onto one single strand of growing hair. The knot is so micro-tiny, the added hair looks and feels and behaves just like the existing growing hair – if not better.

My hair got really thin after menopause and every year it continued to get thinner. I tried everything from slathering on Rogaine to rubbing in cayenne pepper. I was tested, poked and pricked by dermatologists and endocrinologists with very little results. My hair became so thin on top that I could see the outline of my shiny scalp. I was so self-conscious I avoided social activities and when I had to meet with people I would sweep my hair from back to front like Mr. Trump. I decided to search for wigs on the internet. As surfing the web often does, I ended up far away from wigs and closer to hair extensions, specifically at www.thehairspecialist.net. Cyber Hair Micro Point Links was my solution. I had 1200 hairs added to top and crown and it is amazing! And it's so affordable. The entire process was just $350!

Hair Extensions

Being a fashionista, I was always following the newest trend whether it was clothes, makeup, hair color, or cuts. As soon as the short bob came into style what did I do? I cut off all my long "touching the middle of my back hair". I hated it. I couldn't believe I thought this was a good idea. I hated it so much I put it up in a ponytail everyday and bobby pinned all those little pieces back and hair sprayed it to death. Now the worst part is my boyfriend proposed the night I cut my hair. Right, I know I couldn't have picked a worse time to try a new cut. So what's a girl to do? Deal with the short hair or research other options.. I researched other options. I typed in hair extensions and came up with The Hair Specialists in Hudson. Their website had a lot of before and after pictures of their actual work. I felt comfortable going there because I had seen what they are capable of. The last thing I wanted was to hate my hair once again - especially for my wedding. I called and asked a million questions about hair extensions and they answered all of them without hesitation. So I decided to go in for consultation. They told me they could do my hair long and make it look like it had never been cut. They also swore up and down it wasn't going to look fake and that I would love it. I decided to go for it. Let me tell you it was the best decision I have ever made, they're hands definitely work magic. I felt like I was me again! Thank you Kelly and Lee for making me feel good on my big day!
